ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a polishing pad. In particular, the polishing pad of the present invention comprises a sublayer, a middle layer, and a top layer which can function as a polishing layer. The polishing pad of the present invention is useful for polishing articles and particularly useful for chemical mechanical polishing or planarization of a microelectronic device, such as a semiconductor wafer.